

Deputy Director General Markus Berndt is the Head of the EIB Group Representation to the United States and the United Nations.

Prior to taking up his current position, he set up and headed EIB Global, the Bank's arm for operations outside the European Union.

He previously directed the EIB's Group Strategy Department and held managerial positions in the Operations Directorate and the Economics Department.

Before joining the EIB in 2008 as a financial sector expert, Markus Berndt held positions at the International Monetary Fund, the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development and the Corporate Finance and Strategy Practice of McKinsey and Company.

He acquired his PhD in Economics in 2000 as stipendiary of the International Doctorate Programme in Law and Economics by the Max-Planck Institute and the University of Hamburg. During this period, he also spent time as an invited research fellow at Harvard University.

Markus Berndt is married, has two children and enjoys playing rock guitar in his free time.